W. Jackman, Esq.,

University of Toronto.

Dear Mr. Jackman:

I am glad to be able to congratulate you on the publication of your two massive volumes on "Transportation in Modern England". It speaks very highly of your diligence that you have been able to accomplish such a piece of work and I judge that its quality would be good or it would not have been accepted by such a well-known publishing house as the University of Cambridge. Naturally it is a subject on which I would have no competent opinion, but I hope to be able to look into the book to form a general estimate of its character. Meantime again let me congratulate you on the honour you have done to yourself and the credit you are bringing to the University in its publication.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

Professor W. T. Jackman,

University of Toronto.

Dear Professor Jackman:

It gives me great pleasure to be able to inform you that at a meeting of the Board held last Thursday you were appointed to an Assistant Professorship at a salary of $2100. This position to which the Board has appointed you has been well earned by the contributions that you have recently made to economic science, and will you allow me at the same time to express to you the satisfaction that we have had with your work during these few years that you have been in the University. I regret that the multifarious duties of the last two winters and your own domestic trouble have not allowed us to see something more of you.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
